TRAGEDY SHROUDS ANTICOSTI ISLAND

Disasters of Sea in Early Days Gave Isle Gruesome Name.

Toronto, Ont.—Athwart the Gulf of St. Lawrence, like a mighty gunboat guarding the portals of Canada lies the island of Anticosti, as large as Porto Rico, and four times as large as the province of Prince Edward Island.

Thirty-one years ago the late Henri Menier, the "chocolate king" of France, bought the island empire for $100,000. The other day his brother, Senator Gaston Menier sold it to the Wabamun Pulp and Paper company for $4,000,000—190,000,000 francs—a substantial profit for the Menier estate but yet a trifling sum for a kingdom as big as the state of Connecticut.

The "Isle of Shipwrecks" they call Anticosti in memory of the disasters that piled up on its rock-bound coasts before the days of range lights and wireless. Countless tales that are sinister are associated with the island but the sweetening influences of the Menier regime have banished most of them to the limbo of tradition.

When M. Menier, one of the wealthiest men in the world bought the island in 1895 his purpose was to establish a shooting lodge that would be the talk of the Paris boulevards. He planned a game preserve that would be magnificent, as well it might be with an acreage of 3,780 square miles and two or three million acres of woods already naturally stocked with game.

Sees Commercial Possibilities.

But the commercial possibilities of the island which previous generations had left almost as an outcast of the sea soon forced themselves on his attention. Fishing industries were established. A pulp mill was erected. Fishing and hunting camps for American tourists were built and leased with salmon and trout rights. Silver fox ranching was established, producing 1,500 pelts in a season.

A thousand farm settlers were brought from France and the Canadian mainland and given land "on shares." Every department had its own manager. A lobster fisherman from Nova Scotia, taking refuge from a storm in an Anticosti cove, was promptly arrested for trespassing, but the next morning, when his trade had been discovered, he was invited to visit M. Menier in his palace in France and ultimately became manager of Anticosti's lobster fishing department.

And so it comes about that Anticosti bought as a plaything now adds substantially to the Menier millions and is helping the patriotic senator to make a handsome contribution to the "Save the franc" fund.

Deer Roam on Golf Course.

Anticosti remains a magnificent game preserve. Everywhere one turns in Anticosti it is to see, nibbling in the fields, by the roadside, deer—wild deer so tame that the approach of a human seems rather an event to interest than to fear. Fifty or sixty may be counted on the golf course. There are said to be 250,000 on the island. Not a single dog is allowed on Anticosti. Even the wild foxes are to be seen, roaming unmolested along the village street.

Bears originally made Anticosti famous. "Natie-colee," the "place of bear hunts," was the Indian name, and the best of the euphonious French Canadian could do with the name was "Anticosti." Bears still abound. Bears in the New York and Paris zoological gardens boast Anticosti as their home.

The sea thereabouts teems with codfish, haddock, lobsters (which in the tradition of habitants thrived on the victims of shipwrecks) and halibut, some reaching a weight of 400 pounds. Scores of streams abound with salmon and trout. Wild duck, wild geese, gamous, cormorants and sea pigeons fill the air.

Recently Senator Menier planned to bring musk oxen from the Arctic and wild ponies from Isle aux Sables, the lost island of the Atlantic, to Anticosti. Generations ago settlers and horses were landed on Sable. The settlers died and the horses survived in starved form. Menier wanted to see if they could be redeemed.

Island Marooned in Winter.

Though Senator Menier could spend only summers on Anticosti—the island is marooned through a long winter—he never lost interest in the great experiment initiated by his brother. But increasing age made the sea voyage more exacting.

Jacques Cartier in 1534 discovered the island, which in a mood of pique he called "Assumption," a name which, however, would not stick, then King Louis IV presented it as a seignior to Monsieur de la Roche, discoverer of the mouth of the Mississippi and the Illinois. La Roche didn't seem to appreciate Anticosti, and his name is perpetuated not by the St. Lawrence island, but in a small settlement at Joliet.

But in Joliet's family the little island kingdom remained until 1873, when an English company, having bought it, induced Newfoundland fishermen and their families to settle there by dreams of a new Iceland.

Canadian government supply boats saved the settlers' lives after their dream dissolved within a year with the company's failure. In 1882, J. W. Stockwell of Quebec bought the whole island for $100,000. Menier, in his turn, bought it outright in 1895 from the island of Anticosti company, Limited, of London, an English company which had gone bankrupt.

The English fishermen and wreckers who were squatting on the island soon realized that Henri Menier had begun his reign; that he was French to the core, and that he did not appreciate their semi-civilized mode of life. Ordered by Menier to leave the island and not to fish within three miles of the shore, the mutinous fishermen joined the wreckers, who had made the most accessible section of the south shore their profitable stronghold for many years. Determined to investigate the sudden disappearance of the fishermen, Menier set out to steam around the south shore in his yacht Velleda.

Menier Outwits Wreckers.

Out of the darkness that overtook them shone the lurelight of the wreckers. The captain was about to shape his course toward the fatal beacon when Menier had his suspicious roused and went shoreward with a dozen men in a launch. They were fired upon by the wreckers, who saw the yacht anchor and realized that their trick had failed. Next day at the head of an armed posse of his employees Menier discovered their hiding place. A battle ensued, in which two of the wreckers were wounded. Piling the fishermen and ship shrouds into his yacht, Menier landed them summarily on the coast of Quebec.

Here was a clash of sovereignty, and soldiers began drilling for a possible war between Canada and Menier, and possibly France but the affair blew over with mutual concessions, and the Meniers have ever since been welcome visitors to Canada. Senator Gaston Menier a year or two ago officiated at the opening of Toronto exhibition.

On the spot where the wreckers had established their lair, near the fine natural harbor of Ellis bay, at the western tip of the island, M. Menier built a magnificent mansion, a wilderness palace. Down to the smallest detail he drew the plans to suit himself. One oddity of the building upon which he insisted was that all parts of wood and iron must be screwed in place. Not a nail or rivet was used.

Objects of art, famous tapestries and rich and rare furniture were brought to the villa from all over the world. They were insured alone for $800,000. Even the late J. Pierpont Morgan was a bidder once for one of the priceless tapestries, but M. Menier declined to consider the request. In the memory of people still living remains the recollection of the lavish housewarming party given by the French chocolate king when the mansion was completed.

An Island of Wrecks.

Without the lurelights of the wreckers Anticosti's rock-bound and often fog-enclosed coast—only four miles from the regular track of ocean-going steamers—was sufficiently dangerous.

In ten years of the early '80s, it was established by a Canadian official that 106 vessels, including seven steamships, sixty-seven sailing vessels, fourteen brigantines and eighteen schooners, with 3,000 souls and a loss of almost $7,000,000, were tossed upon its sunken reefs.

Sable Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, also famous for its shipwrecks, pales into insignificance before the gruesome details of some of the shipwrecks of this great island in the mouth of the St. Lawrence.

Troopships in almost every early English attempt to take Quebec were tossed upon Anticosti sands. One bleak day in November, 1827, the stout brig Granicus stranded on one of the island's shore reefs. Next spring a Canadian government vessel found the awful record of its crew. Human skeletons littered the inside of a rude hut near the shore, and in a pot over the fireplace were found the preparations for a meal whose like one would hardly expect to find outside Fiji or Tahiti in the premissionary days.

Out of the sixty-five men who found refuge on the island from the French sloop of war, Renommee, in 1737, only three men survived to welcome the rescuing party. Out of the woods came the three men of the Renommee looking more like wild beasts than men, with suppliant hands stretched out toward the French-Canadian fishermen who had come to aid them. For three weeks previous to the rescue they had lived on their boots and fur breeches boiled in snow water, one of them died of joy. One became insane.

Today Anticosti enters a new era. The days of sinister disaster, and of romance, alike have faded. Modern commercialism with its reign of efficiency has at last enveloped this lonely, confining of the deep—Chicago News.

Heir to Vast Tracts in Europe Prefers U. S. Soil

Kansas City, Mo.—Because he preferred an estate of his own rather than to ornament the vast estates acquired by his feudal forefathers in Germany, Count Franchina-Bilku, heir to one of the oldest landed families in Silesia, is clerking in a mail-order house here.

Count Franchina-Bilku is the son of Count Hans Bilku, lord of a 30,000-acre estate in Silesia, a 20,000-acre forest preserve in Czechoslovakia and a 25,000-acre hunting estate in the same country.

His first venture in the Americas, a colonization scheme in Mexico, proved to be a fiasco, so he came to Kansas City and became a bellboy in a local hotel. Later he obtained a position in the mail-order house.

New Competition Idea

The tale of Man has produced a novel contest in the form of a "race" and "go" race. In this the competitors had to carry a distance of 30 miles, during which they were bound to touch the church doors in all the seven corners of the island. The winner covered the distance in just over twenty-four hours.

Early Baseball

The first baseball "diamond" was square instead of a diamond as used now. The bases were wooden posts that stood out of the ground 3 feet. The sides were made up of from 10 to 14 players. The rule of play was, one out all out. The score was 100 balls up. The side first scoring 100 runs was the winner.

New Words

The number of new words added each year to the English language is approximately 100, so that if a man begins at the age of ten to acquire new words, by the time he reaches the thirtieth year, he will have added 1,000 words to his vocabulary. "He'll do him better only know" said a Delphic Engineer.

In memory of my dear mother, Lucy Lawrence Morey, who died 21 years ago today.

MRS. FRED L. RENN.

With heavy hearts we've watched the moments
Of a long year come and go.
Each one filled with lonesome longing
And we wonder if you know
Of the emptiness without you
That your loved ones miss you so.
Of the friends that we may gain,
No one can take your place
We never can forget you
For it seems we trace your face
In the moonlight, in the shadows,
In the emptiness of space.

In the evening time we miss you
And the morning brings the pain
Of the long, long day without you
For your smile is in the sunshine
And we're lonely when it rains.
Oh, the hopelessness of longing
Just to see your face again.

But if we could, we would not have you
Back as in the days of old
For while our hearts have known the sorrow
That a thousand years can hold,
Still there's happiness in knowing
That you're safe within the fold.

In loving memory of Harry R. Krom.

NOTHER AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Richard Harry Krom, who departed this life July 22, 1925.
The hard to break the tender cord
Which love has bound the heart.
The hard, so hard, to speak the words:

Just loved one, we must say good-bye
In the peaceful grave's embrace.
But the memory will be cherished
Till we see the heavenly face.

Big Benefit for Jewish Relief

Three Performances Sunday in Reade's Kingston Theatre Part Local Campaign—Advance Ticket Sale Insures Success.

Large advance sales of tickets for the monster benefit performances to be given in Reade's Kingston Theatre next Sunday are reported and indications are that the theatre will be filled at both evening performances. The entertainment is for the benefit of the United Jewish Campaign to raise $25,000,000 for Jewish relief work in war stricken Europe. The movement is nationwide and Kingston Jews are doing their share.

In addition to the two evening performances, at 7 and 9, there will be an afternoon performance at 3 o'clock. At all three performances Mrs. Helen Stern Mann of Kingston and Henrietta Kooper of New York city will sing and the special picture, "The Combat," will be shown. As Mr. Reade donated the use of his theatre and the artists have donated their services, practically the entire receipts will be turned over to the Jewish Relief Fund.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 22, 1926.

GAS INVENTOR A PACIFIST.

Professor Fritz Haber, the original inventor of poison gas for use in warfare, has had a change of heart. According to report, he became an ardent pacifist after the defeat of Germany in 1918. In a recent speech in Berlin he is reported to have said that the development of inventions in war gases is small now compared with the period of his own activity between 1915 and 1918, although he noted that now "all countries are experimenting with war gases except Germany, where it is prohibited." This, however, did not seem greatly to disturb him as a pacifist, for he asserted that the value of gas as a determining factor in war has been exaggerated. Iron, he said, is the most important material for a nation to have plenty of in up-to-date war. Therefore Germany, after being compelled to yield Alsace-Lorraine to its previous owner, is now, he admitted, "completely without iron and in consequence incapable of warfare."

A cynical observer might be inclined to think that this accounts for the pacifism of the original poison gas inventor, and that it explains why he disarmed Germany former war lords preach peace both to their neighbors and to the world in general—in rather striking contrast with their former view that nations thrive in war, and decay in peace. But both Prof. Haber and the reformed war lords may be quite sincere—for the present, at least. The Germans are an adaptable people, and though the use of adversity may not be as "sweet" as the poet has said, undoubtedly those uses are powerfully persuasive and can even be very effective—as long, at least, as the adversity lasts.

AMERICANS ABROAD.

A large percentage of American tourists in Europe is composed of students and school teachers with educational advantages in view, unpretentious pilgrims to the age-old shrines of culture who are straining their resources in order to be such and who present a striking contrast with the American rich, particularly the newly enriched, who let loose their money with a prodigality and display that amazes the European public. Referring to this matter, the Springfield Republican laments that these education-seeking Americans, who can not live up to their country's reputation for universal wealth, must now also be exposed to the "chilly" attitude toward the representatives of a country now so widely unpopular in Europe. "It is not very pleasant," it says, "for the American of modest means, who has to save up pennies and travel in a disguised stagecoach, to have to bear the full burden of his country's outrageous wealth and its alleged avarice, and some of our tourists are coming home rather weary of the role of unofficial ambassador."

Fortunately the conducted-tour system saves many of our moderate-circumstances tourists from such annoying contact with unfriendly officials and critical yet "gold-digging" natives.

The notable "petition" or open letter of Mr. Peabody of Massachusetts, urging the cancellation of the war debt, was answered by Secretary Mellon in a letter made public on the eve of his departure for Europe. Mr. Peabody contended that the money loaned was really, even at present, for our own defense while we were getting ready to fight during five-sixths of the time we were at war with Germany. In response Mr. Mellon says that the money Congress appropriated for our allies was legally in the form of loans and that the debtor nations have never denied their liability, but at the same time he frankly admits that they could not be held to the strict terms of their obligations and our government had to compound with them on the basis of their ability to pay. In the case of France Mr. Mellon points out that a very large part of her debt is in money loaned after the armistice, and he argues, in effect, that, owing to the concessions we have made, we have already virtually canceled the French debt to us that was contracted prior to the end of the war. This has not been generally known, nor will it now be very clearly understood, and it is likely to surprise those Congressmen who demanded the "last red cent."

Discussing the presentation of American women at the British Court, the Chicago Tribune says: "The trip and gratification of the successful candidates are complementary to the caste system of society. The presentation gives an opportunity for a moment of self-abasement and a lifetime thereafter of self-exaltation, and that opportunity is so much thought of that Americans more than any other people clamor for it. Radical Western Congressmen threaten the Ambassador with political consequences unless he gets the favor for their wives, daughters, sisters, cousins and aunts." And yet the prosperous might save themselves all this, for, according to the Tribune, presentation can be readily "arranged" through English persons of importance on a cash basis.

MAKING NEW BLOOD.

You have heard the word anemia, or perhaps the doctor has told you or some member of your family, that he or she is an anemic.

Your idea of anemia is that it simply means "thin blood," and that is a good definition of it.

What really happens in the ordinary anemic condition is that the food particles in the little red blood cells become less in amount. They contain only fifty or sixty per cent of the normal quantity. Research men have been trying to find out just what causes this thinness of blood, how long it takes to get it back to normal, and what the patient should do to bring it back to normal in the shortest time possible.

Removing a certain quantity of blood experimentally, they tried to find out what happened. Even without food they found that the blood improved slightly in quantity and quality. This showed that somewhere in the body there were reserve materials with which the body made some blood. The bulk of this reserve material was thought to be held in storage in the liver, although some also was likely taken from the spleen, the bone marrow, and the muscles on the outside of the body.

Then certain foods were given and it was found that where bread and milk only were used, it took from six to eight or more weeks for the blood to become normal in quantity and quality.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Grant Defeats and Massacres Settlers in Battle of Minisink, July 22, 1779.

The terrible incursions of bands of the Six Nations in 1775 around the head waters of the Susquehanna and their vicinity and in the Wyoming Valley, Pennsylvania, and Cherry Valley, New York, impelled the inhabitants to exercise vengeance against them in the most effectual manner.

All of these nations, excepting the Oneida and Tuscarora, had been won over to the British, were being employed by the family of Sir William Johnson, and it was a question of the life or death of the frontier.

In the spring of 1779 Colonel Govenor Van Schaick and Marinus Willet, with 500 hundred troops, marched from Fort Schuyler, April 19, and penetrated the Onondaga country south of the present Syracuse. They took the barbarians by surprise, destroyed three towns, burned their provisions and slaughtered their cattle.

The result of this expedition was unfortunate, for 300 Onondaga went immediately on the warpath and spread terror and devastation as far southward as the waters of the Delaware and the borders of Ulster county.

Count Casimir Pulaski and his legion of cavalry were stationed in the village of Minisink, near Port Jervis, during the winter of 1778-79.

In February he was ordered to South Carolina. The settlement was thus left wholly unprotected, which being perceived by Chief Joseph Brant, the daring and treacherous Mohawk warrior, he resolved to make a descent upon it.

On the night of July 19 Brant with 400 Mohawk and Tories fell upon the little town of Minisink, and before the people were aroused from their slumbers several dwellings were set on fire. Without means of defense, the inhabitants sought safety in flight to the mountains. Their small stockade fort, a mill and twelve houses and barns were burned, several persons killed, some captured, cattle driven away and the booty of the village carried to Grassy Brook, where Brant had rested the main body of his command.

While these events were being enacted a call for volunteers was responded to and Colonel Tusten, at Goshen, recruited 150 men. The colonel knowing of the craftiness of Brant, realizing he had a large force, opposed immediate pursuit. A council was held, and when Major Mosker, mounting his horse, shouted "Let the brave men follow me, the cowards may stay behind," the decision was to follow the marauders.

Colonel Hathorn arrived with a few recruits and took command of the pursuing party, which set out on its march, then traveled seventeen miles, then encamped for the night.

The march was resumed the morning of July 22, and at Half Way Brook came upon the Indian encampment of the previous night. The number of smoldering fires indicated a large savage force, and Colonels Hathorn and Tusten, with the more prudent, advocated a return but the majority determined to pursue.

A scouting party was sent forward, but was discovered and the captain slain. The volunteers pressed onward and at 9 o'clock sighted the enemy marching toward a fording place. Colonel Hathorn determined to intercept them at the ford, but Brant who had been watching their movements and comprehending their designs, wheeled his column and by a strategic movement brought his whole force in the rear of the republicans. Here he formed an ambush and deliberately selected his battleground. The volunteers were disappointed at not finding the enemy at the ford and were marching back when they discovered and shot an Indian mounted on a horse stolen at Minisink. This was the signal for action and the severe conflict ensued.

The fight began at 11 o'clock and at twilight was yet undecided. The ammunition of the militia was expended and the enemy attacked and broke through the line. The survivors attempted to retreat. Behind a ledge of rocks Doctor Tusten was dressing the wounds of seventeen who were injured. The Indians fell upon them furiously, and all, including the doctor, were slain.

The republicans were defeated and murdered after they were made prisoners. Of the whole number that went forth, nearly three hundred, only thirty returned to relate the dreadful story of that day.

This massacre of the wounded is one of the darkest stains upon the memory of Brant, whose honor and humanity were often more conspicuous than that of his Tory allies. He made a weak defense of his conduct by asserting he had offered good treatment if they would surrender, and that his proposition was answered by a bullet which pierced his belt.

Forty-three years afterward the bones of friend and foe were picked up, put in boxes and given decent burial, in the center of the Green, in Goshen, and over them a monument was erected bearing the names of the slain. A more elegant monument was erected by Orange county in 1862, to commemorate this event, which is known as the Battle of Minisink.

MEXICO Taming Savage
Indians by Kind Usage

After Years of Bloodshed Yaquis in the State of Sonora Settle Down to Be Farmers.

Nogales, Ariz.—A problem confronting Mexico for the last twenty years, growing out of the central government's treatment of the Yaqui Indians in the state of Sonora, is in the process of being solved. In effect, the government is seeking to pay a debt owed the Indians through confiscation of lands.

Many years ago the Yaquis, an ordinarily peaceful and industrious tribe, but as capable of unmitigated cruelty, lost their rich lands. Some of their acreage was given to large land concerns by concession. Other land was taken over by the government because the Indians were allowing it to lie idle. The vast domain dwindled until it was only a tiny parcel.

Then the tribe went on the war-path, withdrawing far into the Bacate mountains, the strongholds of their fathers. They became treacherous, ferocious and merciless in the torture of their victims. Killed, then president, exiled many, killed off others and scattered their bands. This increased their hatred of the Mexican government.

With the passing of Diaz came a calm in many sections of the Indian country, but not until General Obregon became president did the Indians become pacified. They returned to their lands and worked them with the financial assistance of the government.

Since then the Yaqui has been peaceful. He has been sowing and caring for his lands and developing into a first class citizen.

Now Mexico is turning its attention to the problem of compensation, but this time not in a spirit of conquest. The government, through the secretary of the treasury, is to help the Yaqui acquire the acreage settled upon by both Mexican and foreigner.

The central government's plan calls for an order of payment on lands unlawfully acquired or their return. In either case, the Yaqui will be compensated. Lands taken by the government would be returned to the tribe with only one provision—that they be worked.

Swallows Toothbrush;
X-Ray Locates It

Los Angeles, Calif.—It doesn't pay to attend the solemn rite of polishing off one's tusks with too many flourishes. For witness the case of one A. C. Fox of 423 South Palms Verdes street, San Pedro. While cleaning his teeth he became so zealous that he went beyond the usual molar area and into the tonsil field.

While swabbing lightly about the tonsils he lost his grip upon the toothbrush and unwittingly swallowed it. Police Surgeon Norman at the Hill-side hospital was unable to extricate it in the early stages of its downward course. Fox was then taken to the General hospital X-ray pictures have been taken which show that the elusive brush is lodged quietly in Mr. Fox' stomach.

As yet no course has been decided upon as to the best method of procedure in the case. In the meantime all indications are that he will live, and the patient reports that he is not suffering any great pain.

Master of Morgue for 40 Years to Quit Job

Boston—Louis A. Pasco, for 40 years in charge of the morgue at the city hospital, who has handled 50,000 identified and unidentified bodies during these years, dubbed at one time "the master of the unknown dead" by an interne with a penchant for titles, is retiring and will hit the trail, he says on a long vacation to the very southland of life in the south seas.

Forty years ago Pasco was working in Tinkham's undertaking rooms when Dr. G. H. M. Rowe, then head of the city hospital, asked him to come to the hospital and take charge of the "dead house" for a couple of weeks. He went and has been there ever since. Many a newspaper editor can remember when, as a young reporter, he came breathless to Pasco to see if the murdered man had been identified.

Wine Way to Ballet in Child Dance Contest

Milan—Winning recognition as an accomplished dancer at the age of seven years paved the way for Rosina Galli to her present position of premiere danseuse and ballet mistress at the Metropolitan opera house in New York.

The danseuse, who is here on vacation, has returned to the scene where, as a little girl, she was taken as a guest to attend a carnival in which prizes for dancing were to be awarded. The lure of the music carried her into the contest, where she danced with the grace and ease of one with long years of training. Miss Galli received first prize.

Then followed an invitation from Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan, and she became a member of the ballet.

Hears Spirit Voices

London—Olive Bellamy, who has campaigned for the Labor party against the candidates of his father, the prime minister, is now a spiritualist. He says he has heard spirit voices in the Jungles.

"CANADA DRY!" Just say those two magic words to your cheerful friend behind the counter and he will serve you the coolest and most refreshing drink you've ever tasted on a hot summer's day.

You will like the wonderful flavor, of course, for there is no ginger ale in all the world with a flavor so supremely fine as this.

But there is an even more important reason why you will like "Canada Dry." It's a real ginger ale, made from real Jamaica ginger.

Because of this it lifts you up! Refreshes! Invigorates! Makes you feel keen and cool and cheery, no matter how hot the day.

Especially in summer-time you want a beverage that you know is good for you, and you get just that when you ask for "Canada Dry."

Substitutes can't possibly bring you the same refreshment because most of them aren't real ginger ales at all, but owe their "bite" to capsaicum, or red pepper. There is no capsaicum in "Canada Dry."

Appeals Heard in County Court

court at Port Ewen was reversed. Gunderson was arrested in October, 1925, on a charge of violation of section 14, subdivision 1 of the general highway and traffic law. A trial was held and defendant was found guilty and fined $10. He paid under protest. Roscoe V. Lillworth of Brinier, Canfield & Lillworth attacked the conviction on the grounds that the section of the law under which Gunderson was convicted in 1925 had been superseded on July 1, 1924, by section 247 b of the highway law and that at the time of the conviction there was no such law as that under which Judge McKenzie had found defendant guilty. The charge is that of reckless driving. Conviction reversed.

Two Appeals Dismissed

The appeals of Edward Conn and Kenneth Frost were both dismissed when there was no appearance.

Interesting Legal Question Raised.

Decision was reserved in the appeal of Mary Wright who was found guilty of disorderly conduct by Police Justice Clyde Gardner of Saugerties village. Brinier, Canfield & Lillworth appeared for her. She was originally charged with a violation of section 720 of the penal law. This was withdrawn and she was arrested on a charge of violation of section 6-a Chapter 575 of the laws of 1925. She demanded a jury trial and was denied permission by the justice. The case was appealed on the grounds that the justice had no jurisdiction to try the case summarily. Section 575 takes away by legislation the right to a jury trial for violations and does not apply to the town in general or to other laws not village ordinances, by-laws or charter violations even though committed in the village, according to counsel for the appellant. It was argued that the charge of disorderly conduct was not a violation of any village provision and therefore did not come under the provisions of the special act which denied a jury trial. The question was a nice one and defendant asked permission to file a memorandum. The application was granted and decision reserved.

Questions Woman's Right To Talk.

Edith Charles of Kingston appealed from a conviction in city court. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for her. She was convicted of disorderly conduct in August 1925 and was sentenced to the Albany penitentiary for 60 days.

On August 25, 1925, Edith and a gentleman friend were at her home in Kingston. She and the man went out. Her brother, Joseph Charles, and a friend came in. The friend was somewhat intoxicated and it was suggested that he and Joseph go to Gloucester to the fireworks. According to the statements made Joseph parked his friend on the couch and borrowed $10 for taxi hire. He went out to get a taxi and left his friend in the house.

Joe did not come back. Edith did. When she came in with her friend she discovered the man on the couch and not knowing him she demanded he leave. He refused to until Joe came back with the taxi on the $10. This was several hours after Joseph had left and the friend had sobered up. He explained how he came to be there. In the talk which followed a neighbor overheard the noise and summoned the police and all three were arrested. Edith's friend was fined $5 she was sentenced to Albany and Joseph's friend was fined $10.

Edith was sent to Albany and Mr. Flanagan appealed the case to Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck in the absence of County Judge Fowler. The appeal was allowed and Edith was saved from serving her 60 days pending the decision of the appeal. Mr. Flanagan argued that Miss Charles was in her own home and was attempting to eject a stranger from her own rooms, that it was not disorderly conduct.

The people, however, allege that the language which she used in the process of ejecting the man was not suitable to the time place or necessity and that it was the language which constituted the disorderly conduct in connection with the noise she made in the process. Time to submit a memorandum was granted.

Time to Investigate Case.

The appeal of Clayton Ticefeldt, formerly of Phoenixia convicted in Judge Voss's court of assault, third degree, was held over a week to give time to secure additional return and investigate the case. Ticefeldt was arrested and pleaded guilty on Sunday. This was not a serious objection to the conviction but Chris J. Flanagan, who appeared for Ticefeldt, stated that the sentence of 90 days in jail was excessive. Ticefeldt served eight days of his time and then an appeal was granted.

Place Blame on Nickerson.

Jennie O'Connell, David O'Connell and Charles Koehler appealed from a conviction in Judge McKenzie's court at Port Ewen. No return was filed and an adjournment was taken to look up the matter. The three were arrested on a warrant and fined following a neighborhood squabble at New Salem. Koehler alleged that he was attacked without provocation by a man named Nickerson and sustained a fracture of his jaw. The O'Connells and the Nickersons have had considerable trouble between the families and Koehler was a boarder at the one house. There is an action now pending for damages brought by Koehler against Nickerson. The appeal was taken on the grounds that there was no justification for the fine imposed on the three who claim Nickerson was to blame for the affray.

William Thompson, convicted in city court appealed from a ten day sentence and his appeal was heard.

and the ten day sentence was reduced to six days which he had already served prior to the perfecting of the appeal.

Thomas Feared McCullough's Gun.

Lee Thomas, convicted and fined $25 in Judge Webber's court on a charge of disorderly conduct, appealed his case. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for him. He was arrested in June, 1924, by Constable Michael McCullough of East Kingston. Thomas claims that he was arrested by McCullough in the city of Kingston without any warrant having been issued in the town of Ulster where he was arrested. He also alleges that at the time he was not informed of his rights and that he was intimidated by the constable who appeared intoxicated and who flourished a gun. He alleges that he was frightened and paid his $25 fine at the time in order to get away from the gun which McCullough carried. An adjournment was taken to further investigate and look up the return in the case. McCullough alleged that the arrest was made in the town of Ulster at the time of arraignment.

Admission Not a Plea.

Mamie Smith, colored, who used a baseball bat on one Jordan, appealed from her conviction in city court. She was given 90 days in the Albany penitentiary for assault, third degree. The appeal was taken on the grounds that Mamie had not entered a plea of guilty at the time she was arraigned and convicted in city court. It is alleged that Jordan desired to withdraw the charge but the court refused to allow it and turned to Mamie, asked her if she had Jordan and that she replied that she had. She denies that this was a plea of guilty. She served three days in Albany and was released pending argument of appeal. The case was adjourned until July 24 in order to get a return in the case. Carolyn Bruce, counsel.

Decision was reversed. Caslin was arrested and convicted of disorderly conduct in city court. He was arraigned by Officer Burger on April 25, 1926, when it is alleged he attempted to interfere with Burger when he was making an arrest downtown. Caslin denied he tried to interfere with the officer but that he pleaded with him to be allowed to take the man who Burger was to arrest to his home and care for him. The appeal is taken on the grounds that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant conviction. Caslin was fined $15.

SALESMANAGER SPEAKING

I am the man who is assisting Mr. Dittmar in putting on this BIG REMODELING SALE. I have traveled many miles before reaching Kingston. At once I went to Mr. Dittmar's store and investigated his stock of merchandise—I find nothing in this stock but reputable merchandise, such as the Dittmars have always had the reputation of carrying. This is a Truthful, Bonafide Bargain-giving Sale. Should you doubt this, just come in and investigate all the new price signs and tags that you will see on all sides. It is room we want and room we must have to do this remodeling—hence the merciless price-cutting.

Yours to save you money,

THE SALESMANAGER.

These Prices Call For Drastic and Immediate Action.

Going to Remodel My Store?

Yes, carpenters go to work Monday, August 2nd. And they must have room to work. As you all know my store is filled up, every nook and corner with merchandise. Now in order to give these carpenters room to work I must sell off a lot of stock in the 7 days' selling. Sale starts Saturday, July 24th, and closes Saturday night, July 31st. This is a sale of real bona fide bargains, whoever comes and buys my merchandise now at these cut prices will enjoy a great saving.

Yours to save you big money,

GEO. A. DITTMAR.

How to make Raspberry Jam

keep the color and flavor of the fresh berries

Here is an easy new way to make perfect raspberry jam without cooking away the luscious fresh flavor of your berries and their beautiful bright color.

With Certo you do not have to "boil your fruit down." One or two minutes' boiling is enough to give a perfect, tender jelly. You cannot have a failure and you get half again more jam from your fruit because you save the juice instead of cooking it away.

Crush thoroughly about 2 quarts ripe berries. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into a large kettle, add 6 1/2 level cups (2 3/4 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute, remove from fire and stir in 1/2 cup Certo. Stir and stir repeatedly for just 5 minutes after taking from fire, to cool slightly. Then pour quickly and cover hot jam at once with hot melted paraffin.

A book of nearly 100 recipes for all sorts of delicious jams and jellies comes with each bottle of Certo. Your grocer carries Certo, or you can send 10c (for postage) and get a trial half-size bottle which will make from 6 to 10 glasses of jam or jelly, depending upon the recipe used. Address Douglas-Peetin Corporation, 5500 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y.

Now I can do the biggest Summer wash

—in half the time!

Of course the wash is heavier during the warm months, and things get so much more dirty and grimy. But that doesn't bother me one bit, any more.

I have found a way to get the biggest summer wash out of the way in no time, without the least bit of hard rubbing. I just soak everything in thick, creamy Rinso suds—and dirt and stains float off by themselves!

Clothes come out of a Rinso soaking much brighter and whiter than I could rub them. I don't even need to boil, because Rinso sterilizes, too! Sonowmy kitchen is cool on washdays.

Rinso makes the water wonderfully soft and sudsy. It's all I need on wash-day. Just ask your grocer for

League Continues Steady Growth

Dairymen's League Pool Price Shows Increase Despite Unfavorable Conditions—1,900 New Membership Contracts Received in Three Months.

New York, July 22.—Despite the fact that the peak of fresh production of milk in the New York City Milk Shed was reached about June 17 and that cool weather throughout the month prevented any large increase in consumption, the net pool price of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., for June is $1.81. This is an increase of one cent per 100 pounds of three percent milk in the 201-210 mile zone over last year's June net price of $1.80.

The gross June price is $1.872. From this is deducted $.062 for administrative expenses of the League. Deductions for Certificates of Indebtedness are 15 cents.

Although the pool price is but a slight increase over the figure for the same month a year ago, it demonstrates increased efficiency on the part of the Dairymen's League as a marketing organization. In June 1925 the pool price was materially aided by the fact that the fore part of the month brought one of the hottest spells of the whole summer and demand increased substantially. In June of this year, however, there was no hot weather and consequently the ratio of fluid milk consumption and the demand for ice cream. At the same time the surplus problem loomed to the fore as peak production was reached about the middle of the month.

Fluid milk sold to dealers during April brought $3.413.767.18, while sales from plants operated by the League in April totaled $2.482.392.68 making an aggregate for that month of $5,896.159.86.

An increase of one-third in the number of new membership contracts received by the League in the first quarter of the new fiscal year has been announced. For the three months period of April, May and June the Association accepted 1,900 new contracts in comparison with 1,379 for the same period a year ago, or an increase of 620.

In April 1925, 597 new contracts were executed, while for the same month this year the number was 871. In May of a year ago 433 were put into effect, and May 1926 brought 591. June 1925 produced 349 new members while last month the number was 537.

The KITCHEN CABINET

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

As it is neither possible nor wise to carry in one's head a large number of recipes, the efficient woman will card index her supply and be able in a few minutes to locate any in her possession.

A notebook or chart on which may be noted possibilities of various amounts of foods which in other homes are often thrown out or left to spoil, will mark the efficient and thrifty housekeeper. For example, as a preparation to compute, write dishes which may be prepared with certain amounts, and record the results. A cupful of tomato tomato sauce used for sliced cold meat, 2 1/2 English meat dish, 1/2 creamed tomato soup for three or four, 1/2 cup tomato sauce will be satisfactory.

The present idea about this system is that it is a way of growing new ideas and saving the repetition of old ones.

When planning a menu, a picture book of cold meats, soups, stews, and other dishes may be prepared with this system, and realized by a list of the possibilities.

Another advantage of the card index idea is to use it in various ways in the household. In case of fire loss, a list of household supplies of linen, clothing, furnishings and silver as well as other valuables, is invaluable to give a correct estimate of loss.

In large establishments where system is worked out carefully, lists of supplies needed are indexed and when ordering all that is needed is to refer to the cards as to amount of linen, bedding and such things which need to be renewed. One will find by using this system it is a pleasure to be methodical.

Start a card indexed house and so what a fine game it is. Even in the simplest of homes and with the small out equipment it will be most satisfactory.

Neiss Maxwell

Mr. Marion Fair.

Mr. Maxwell, July 22.—On the afternoon and evening of August 12, a sale and children's party will be held in the Mr. Maxwell Church hall. All kinds of fancy articles will be for sale, also home-made ice cream, candy and soft drinks. Those who have purchased of the children's party in the past will find they will not be disappointed if they come again.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

One Wonders Whether the Craze for Black Revives Black and Gold Jewels and Emphasizes the Effectiveness of Crystal.

Everyone is now more or less familiar with the fact that the smart world has gone into black, surfeited perhaps by an over-indulgence in glaring colors. This passion for black, latent in all Latin women, obviously because black is so effective on them, has brought in its wake many interesting jewelry novelties, for a black gown is the perfect foil for jewels.

Saturated with pearls, French women have turned their attention to diamonds, alone or in combination with unusual stones or with onyx, and they have taken a notion to wear black and gold jewels, in arresting designs as well as sparkling crystals. There is something quite new in earrings, a jeweled affair which clamps the lobe of the ear, following its curving line. This ultra type, as well as a greatly modified pendant effect, seems to be the most important at the moment.

The black gown for day or night, and it must be recorded that it is smartest at night, is nearly always to be relied upon to have a relieving touch. Lelong, like many others, softens black with fringe, and is partial to heavy crepe satin for some of his more stately gowns. Yet, like all of the haute couture, he is successful in his manipulations of lace, the main thing about a lace gown being that it must avoid any semblance of the dowager type and be relatively simply and always sheer.

But to return to the fascinating subject of modern jewels, there seems to be a tendency to revive silver trinkets, which is natural enough, considering how the smart world welcomed gold.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Those who attended the premiere of the Blackbirds of 1926, at the Ambassadors in Paris, were impressed—almost blinded—by the glare and glitter of the gowns worn by one of the smartest audiences Paris has had this season. Many sequins, beads, and metal laces added to the glitter, and, of course, there were any number of rhinestone or diamond-studded dresses. Needless to say, the scene was a dazzling one, and this with black as the most arresting color note.

The appearance of silver jewelry is causing comment both in Paris and in New York.

All Paris reports, as well as letters from Beauville and Biarritz, combine to emphasize blue.

While necklines assume many interesting lines, the graceful horseshoe or U-shaped décolleté appears to be most universally approved.

This Great Healing Oil Must Banish Eczema and Skin Troubles

Or Your Money Back.

That's the Plan on Which Moore's Emerald Oil is Sold by Wm. F. Dedrick's to all who Buy it for any Skin Trouble Whatever.

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

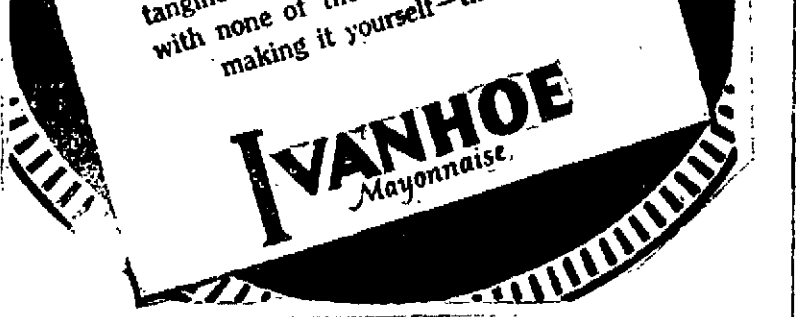

Never mind what caused it—you've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Wm. F. Dedrick's or any other good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered the one and only sure way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Remember that Moore's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

The delicious flavor, the delicate tanginess of home-made mayonnaise with none of the bother or risk of making it yourself—that's

That at the first court of the season held at Buckingham Palace, scintillating pink gowns carried off the honors. Several were of pink chiffon with diamante trimmings; others were of chiffon or georgette. Mrs. Alanson Houghton, wife of the American Ambassador, was dressed by Worth in rose georgette with gold lace and sequins, the court train being of gold tissue lined with satin.

Lace gowns, fringed ones, and plain crepe satins have the approval of the chic Parisienne.

Fringe and lace are most frequently relied upon to achieve the bolero line, and the use of many sequins and the popularity of the wide draped girdle are responsible for the gipsy-like aspect of many smart frocks.

At Biarritz, where many of the smart set are at the moment, although it is not the grande saison, emphasis is placed on sweaters topped by capes and worn with skirts which, of course, match the cape.

Doilmans are seen here, there, and everywhere, including the Horse Show at the fashionable Westchester Biltmore Country Club, although this event quite naturally stressed sports clothes, and of rather a boyish type, by the way.

Large hats have most decidedly returned to favor. One sees many navy Milans and some red ones, although black tulle, Milan and velvet being a well-liked combination.

WHEATON, Ill. July 22.—Red Grange expressed surprise here today when told of reports that Charles A. Taylor, wealthy Beverly Hills, California, oil dealer, had named him in a cross-complaint to meet the divorce suit brought by Taylor's wife.

Bond and Stock Owners Approve

Consent Given to Owners of Bonds and Stocks of Kingston Theatre Corporation to Increase Directors and Issue Bonds.

At a meeting of bond and stockholders of the Kingston Theatre Corporation, held Wednesday afternoon in the Auditorium, consents were signed for the election of four additional directors, making the board to consist of seven persons instead of three, and for the issuing of $250,000 of first mortgage bonds and $150,000 of second mortgage bonds.

The second, then, originally called "gold debenture bonds," will now be officially entitled "second mortgage bonds," which is not only accurately descriptive but gives additional safety, as it makes impossible the issuing of any other bonds, except those securing the first mortgage.

The business transacted was purely routine and taken on the advice of counsel. John W. Eckert, attorney for the corporation, was present and explained the purpose of the papers to be signed, which he had drawn.

May Indict Dry Agent Monday

Colonel Green, San Francisco's Federal Prohibition Director May Have to Face Serious Charges, According to Rumors.

San Francisco, July 22.—Accused of protecting alleged bootlegging establishments and diverting seized liquor for consumption at "parties" at which he was the host, Colonel Ned M. Green, San Francisco's federal prohibition director, today was facing indictment before the grand jury which will convene here Monday.

The charges against Colonel Green, according to rumors prevalent in federal circles, will take the following form.

1.—That Col. Green appropriated countless gallons of government seized liquor for his own personal use.

2.—That Colonel Green used this liquor at "wild parties" at his hotel.

3.—That large numbers of persons attended these affairs, among whom was a man known as the San Francisco agent for a Canadian rum-running combine.

4.—That Colonel Green was seen intoxicated in public places on numerous occasions, and that he openly boasted of his drinking.

5.—That Colonel Green "protected" certain suspected bootlegging establishments, and that he had even destroyed search warrants issued against these places.

Taylor Denies Naming Grange

In a Cross-Complaint For Divorce In Answer To His Wife's Suit—Grange Surprised At Reports.

Los Angeles, July 22.—Charles A. Taylor, wealthy oil supply man of Beverly Hills, denied today that he had named "Red" Grange in a cross-complaint for divorce in answer to his wife's suit filed recently.

Taylor declared the story he had charged his wife with becoming infatuated with the famous football fullback "was all wet."

"It's a big slam against 'Red,'" Taylor said.

Mrs. Clarence Taylor brought her action for divorce against the oil supply man on the grounds of cruelty. The Taylors have been married eleven years and have a 6-year-old daughter.

Campaign Money Hard to Obtain

Collectors For Both Republican and Democratic Parties Find That Reed Committee Investigations Make It Hard to Get Usual Checks.

Washington, July 22.—Campaign fund collectors are returning to the national capital these warm July days almost empty-handed and reporting that business is very, very bad.

Both the Republican and Democratic committees that are charged with direction of the fight to elect the new congress in November are badly in need of funds, but unless business picks up in the fall it is entirely probable that the congressional elections of 1926 will establish a record for economy in expenditure.

The Reed committee is blamed for the difficulty in getting contributions. The fact that the committee uncovered the expenditure of nearly $3,000,000 in Pennsylvania, and is about to investigate another reported three-million-dollar primary in Illinois has made business men exceedingly cautious about writing the usual checks, according to reports being turned in to headquarters.

Few Checks Reported.

Pennsylvania, New York, and Illinois ordinarily furnish the bulk of the financial slush with which political campaigns are fought. This should have been a good year for business in good, the country is prosperous and congress did not enact any legislation calculated to "interfere" with the business world. Yet the collectors of both major parties are returning to Washington with tales of woe and few checks.

"Jim Reed's committee is to blame," complained one collector who has made several unsuccessful trips to New York. "It isn't because there is any lack of money, or disinclination to part with it. Business men who ordinarily can be counted on for a thousand or five thousand dollars simply say they don't want to get mixed up in an investigation and come down to Washington to have Jim Reed question them as to where they got the money and what they expect to get for it."

Both Committees "Broke."

Both the Republican and Democratic senatorial committees are virtually "broke," it was learned today. Yet speakers' bureaus have to be established and maintained, and the expenses of craters paid to go into contested states. Where the sinews are to come from, the worried chairmen do not know.

The Republican senatorial committee, of which Senator Phipps (R) of Colorado is chairman, is somewhat better off than the Democratic committee. The Republicans had a surplus in 1924, which was "loaned" to the national committee, and western Republicans who are facing stiff fights in their respective states are insisting that this loan now be paid back. The national committee, however, is in a name too flourishing financial condition and collections with it, too, are slow. Some of the westerners are said to be wrathful over the national committee's tardiness in repaying the loan.

New York Jeweler Killed.

New York, July 22.—A jeweler was shot and killed and his clerk wounded today when six gunmen standing on the sidewalk in front of a Broadway jewelry store riddled the place with bullets. A Rodack, owner of the store, died on the way to a hospital, and the clerk, Steven Freed, is in a serious condition.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 22.—After an early recovery, stimulated by the favorable developments in the French situation, the stock market reacted to selling pressure directed against the industrial shares and prices moved downward sharply. The inability of the market to continue the recovery, and the widespread uneasiness over the French economic situation, encouraged the bearish professionals in their violent drive against stock values shortly after the noon period. The burden of stock selling orders was too great for the market to absorb without a series of sharp declines in the leading speculative shares, including Hudson Motors, United States Steel, General Motors, Westinghouse, Baldwin Locomotive, Woolworth, etc.

The independent steel stocks attracted considerable buying. The rails, oils, coppers, equipments and specialties were sidetracked, leaving only the motor and steel stocks as the vehicle of professional operations. General Motors sold up to 170 in the first hour, but later declined to 135 1/2. Hudson dropped from 65 to 61 1/2 and United States Steel from 112 1/2 to 109 1/2.

SECURED WARRANT FOR "BEST FRIEND."

Ralph Ellsworth of Greenkill avenue was arrested on a warrant Wednesday by Sergeant Phinney. The warrant was obtained by John Amarello of 4 Fair street and charged Ralph with assault in the third degree. This morning before Judge Shufeldt in police court Ralph explained it was all a mistake and that he was John's best friend, John, who was also present, said he wished to withdraw the charge against Ralph and the latter was discharged. John McPhail, a negro of Catherine street, was arrested Wednesday by Officer Welch for driving an auto on Delaware avenue without having a chauffeur's or operator's license. John explained to Judge Shufeldt that he had no license. He was fined $10 and payment suspended with the warning that he should not attempt to drive a car again until he had first obtained a license.

Home Reflects Character
Every well-furnished home reflects personality. This personality may be that of the decorator, but if it is merely that, something is lacking. The true feeling of home is attained only when the expression is of the life and individuality of the owners.

Origin of "Tennessee"
The word "Tennessee" is said to be a corruption of an Indian word which is usually written "tenassee," which means "river of the big bend," according to some authorities, and "a curved spoon," according to others. The name "Tennessee" was applied to the region while it was still a part of North Carolina.—Pathfinder Magazine.

South America in Our Daily Life

Rotarians Told of Ways in Which Sister Continent Contributes to Our Needs, by Former Resident Who Now Lives in Well Equipped Town in Dutchess County.

Rotary in order to be in harmony with the weather, had for its speaker this week the Rev. M. L. Wolcott, who talked about South America. Mr. Wolcott introduced his remarks on South America by stating that he was now living over in Dutchess county in a village of 1,900 population, 6 churches, and 49 bootleggers, a hell-hole, progressive, and well equipped town. He spent 10 years in South America, and visited all parts of that continent.

Our conception of South America, he said, is largely based on what we see across the Mexican border—a cloud of dust with bandits and dark-eyed maidens. In like manner South America pictures us as a people of divorces, lynchings, sky scrapers and political bosses. Newspapers are filled with home and European news, but there is little about South America and that little usually about a revolution that is not of half the importance some of our smaller strikes are. Yet South America enters our daily life from the time we drink our coffee from Brazil, sweetened with sugar from Venezuela, and eat vegetables that grew because they had been fertilized with Chilean nitrate, on through the day.

Eating Nice Fat Cats.

The Amazon would turn the Mississippi pea green with envy and the La Plata is navigable for ocean steamers 1,000 miles from its mouth, which is 200 miles in width. In the upper river is a falls double the size of Niagara. In the cities one sees the latest Paris fashions. True there are some wonderful dishes served in hotels, such as snails in olive oil and English sparrows with nothing missing, but the feathers cooked in olive oil. The flesh of a nice fat cat is considered a delicacy. Argentina is the farming paradise. One could begin a furrow at Buenos Aires and run it 600 miles west without striking a stone or a hill more than six feet in height. Scenery is grand and varied. The botanist and the entomologist find the widest field for study. Insect life as prodigious and fleas are everywhere. Everybody drinks and the wine is said to be excellent. In Pataguay women do the hard work. One sees them as stevedores and in the country they work the farms while the men sit in the shade and smoke.

No Middle Class There.

South America has been backward for many reasons. It had no Plymouth Rock. The Spaniards went as conquerors, for the gold they could get. It has no middle class. The wealthy land owners are the rulers and there is no class between them and the workers who live in huts. There has been little education. Church and state have been united. But these conditions are showing signs of change. Education is awakening and the educated show a disposition to stoop and aid. The daybreak is coming and soon there will be a sunrise well worth watching. As their nearest neighbors, who should have an interest in progress in the western hemisphere, we should watch this sunrise. It means much to us in business opportunity as well as in other ways.

Last Night's Fights.

At Los Angeles.—Charley Weinert, Newark, N. J., heavyweight, won on a foul in the fourth round from "Chuck" Wiggins, Los Angeles.

Everett Strong, Iowa, middleweight, defeated Billy Atkinson, 10 rounds.

At Oakland, Cal.—Ray Peiker, Oakland, Cal., light heavyweight, beat Jake Kilraine, Chicago, 6 rounds.

At Bayonne, N. J.—Johnny Leonard, Allentown, Pa., and Mike Balserino, Bayonne, fought a draw 10 rounds.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

While reception was not so loud and clear as on Tuesday night and there was a marked tendency to fade, still a radio set was worth owning last night. Early evening conditions were excellent and the fading did not appear until after 9 o'clock. Chicago and Cincinnati came in well but other western and southern stations were weak or could not be heard at all.

The Imperial Imps were a WJZ feature that was received perfectly. WRNY was a nuisance on its 374 meter wave, interfering seriously with WGY on 280 meters, without being able to put itself over.

The worst fading was in reception from WJZ after 9 o'clock.

There was no noise by static but an unfavorable condition blanketed many stations and caused an unusual amount of interference.

WNAC and WEAN are the only jumpers who seem to have received any benefit from their change. Sale of WEAF to the Radio Corporation is another step toward better broadcasting and stations powerful enough to overcome interference of the WHAP type. "Freedom of the air," the loss of which is so greatly feared by those who abuse it, has been sampled by the public during the past week and found to be of benefit to nobody. "Freedom of the air" results in freedom to be a nuisance and to ruin the work of others by interference and bore-ome propaganda and abuse.

Culliton Loses Game.

Bud Culliton was the losing pitcher in Wednesday's New Haven-Hartford Eastern League game, which Hartford won by a 4-2 score. Culliton was sent in at the beginning of the ninth to relieve Thomas with New Haven sporting a 3-2 lead. The local hurler however was found for three hits and two runs.

One Help to Happiness

Among the things that enable a man to be self-satisfied is a poor memory.

WHY NOT?

So long as a fellow should spend a third of his life sleeping he should have a comfortable bed in a cheerful room. A small ad in The Freeman classified columns will find it.

Ignored

State and private investigators into the death of Don Mellett, murdered Canton, O., publisher, ignored the offers of assistance from Police Chief S. A. Lengel, who had not been friendly to the dead man.

THE AUTHORITY ON BRIDGE

MR. FOSTER, the acknowledged authority on games, first introduced auction bridge to America. He is the author of the standard books on cards and is society's accepted teacher of bridge.

Here is what Mr. Foster says about Clicquot Club Ginger Ale:

"At the bridge table in the best houses, I have always found a certain quiet distinction in all such details as the playing cards, the score-pads, the pencils, and the ash trays. Everything in excellent taste. Recently I have been forced to remark the growing popularity of Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale on the side tables. It seems as though no bridge were now complete without it. Clicquot Pale Dry has delicacy, a subtlety of flavor that seems to suit to a 'T' the exacting taste of discriminating people."

Two flavors to choose from

The new Pale Dry Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is subtle and delicate. The famous Golden Clicquot Club is more gingery, a more vigorous drink. Each comes in a bottle of generous measure at a sensible price. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.
